Discussion Items

- Joint Point of Diversion Operation (JPOD)

CDFW asked for an update on the JPOD stage 2 operations and ongoing repairs at the federal facilities.

Reclamation stated the O'Neill pumping/generating plant outage for transformer rehabilitation has ended (outage was from Oct. 6 to Oct. 25). Reclamation is not currently exporting any water under JPOD Stage 2 at Banks Pumping Plant as there is not capacity at Banks Pumping Plant to move federal water. Further maintenance activities will begin mid-November and extend into late December for Delta-Mendota Canal/California Aqueduct Intertie (DCI) work. This may provide additional opportunities to move federal water via JPOD Stage 2.

- Big Notch Project

DWR announced that Big Notch Project will begin operating soon. The current storm event is not large enough to reach the top of the weir, but DWR is looking to see how the following storm will fare. This initial precip event will have a max capacity of 1,000 cfs but future events may have a max capacity of 6,000 cfs of diversion down the system. DWR plans to add the rate of diversion to the Fremont Weir flows when calculating Net Delta Outflow Index and other Delta values.
